Imagination and Nerve
Yes . . . there are better ways to do everything, including selling furniture . . . and we are constantly re-appraising and re-evaluating every facility we use in terms of "is this the best way to do it in 1956?" We check on indifference wherever it is spotted. There are tremendous problems in retailing these days . . . store hours . . . personnel . . . the high cost of doing business . . . yet we are constantly asking . . . "is there a better way of doing this particular operation?" And we still need more imagination, plus cold-blooded nerve
